About
Family Services of Peel

For more than five decades, Family Services of Peel has worked alongside individuals, families and communities across Peel. FSP provides professional and inclusive services that respond to complex and changing needs, with work spanning counselling, violence prevention, employment, developmental services, family education, research and training, and community-based supports.

Our work is rooted in compassion, collaboration, courage, integrity and innovation. We believe that strong communities are built when people have access to the right support, when families can thrive, and when organizations work together to address the challenges facing residents.

Support Today. Stronger Tomorrows.

MESSAGE FROM THE BOARD CHAIR

A Stronger Today. A Brighter Tomorrow.

Muneeb Ruhi
Board Chair

Behind every number in this report is a real person and a real story. A parent who walked through our doors unsure what came next. A child finding their footing. A family taking its first steady step forward.

This year, more than 5,300 families across Peel found that support with us. One figure stood out to me more than any other: walk-in counselling contacts grew by over 54 percent. That tells me our community is reaching out sooner, and trusting us more, when things get hard.

None of this happens in a boardroom. It happens because of the people on the frontlines, in counselling rooms, in client events, in phone calls answered at difficult hours, who choose this work because they genuinely care about the families of Peel.

On behalf of the Board, I want to thank them, along with Sandra Rupnarain and her leadership team, for the vision and care they bring to this organization every day.

This was also a year of looking ahead. Working alongside our staff, partners and community, we built our 2026 to 2029 Strategic Plan, giving us a clear path toward a stronger, more resilient and more inclusive Peel.

Chairing this Board has been one of the privileges of my career. Watching our mission turn into real, lived change gives me a lot of confidence in what comes next. We have the right people, a clear vision, and a community that keeps showing up for each other.

Impact Today. Opportunity Tomorrow.

Sandra Rupnarain, Executive Director

As we reflect on 2025–2026, I am proud of the meaningful impact Family Services of Peel has made across our community. This year has been one of continued service, growth and connection, made possible by the dedication of our staff, the commitment of our volunteers and Board, and the strength of the partnerships we have built throughout Peel.

Every day, FSP supports individuals and families navigating complex challenges. Through our counselling and family services, violence prevention and support programs, employment services, developmental services, research and training initiatives, and broader community engagement, we continue to respond to the evolving needs of the communities we serve.

Our impact is measured not only in the number of people we reach, but in the difference our services make in their lives. Behind every statistic is a person who has found support, a family that has gained greater stability, a community member who has connected with an opportunity, or a partner who has found a stronger pathway to serve our community. These outcomes are a reflection of the skill, compassion and commitment of the people who make FSP what it is.

This year also marked an important transition for our organization as we launched our 2026–2029 Strategic Plan. This plan builds on the foundation we have established while providing a clear framework for where we go next.

Achieving that vision will require us to continue working collaboratively. Our strongest impact has always come from the relationships we build—with community organizations, government, funders, businesses, educators, sector leaders and, most importantly, the individuals and families we serve. As we move forward, we are committed to deepening those relationships and creating new opportunities for collaboration.

2026–2029 Strategic Plan

FIVE STRATEGIC PILLARS

- High Impact Programs
- Community Leadership & Partnership
- Financial Sustainability & Growth
- Operational Excellence & Digital Transformation
- Equity, Inclusion & Community Wellbeing

We also recognize that FSP has knowledge and expertise that can contribute beyond the communities we directly serve. Through our research, training, partnerships and innovative approaches, there are opportunities to share what we learn, strengthen the broader social services sector and contribute to positive change beyond Peel.

I invite organizations, funders, community leaders, businesses and partners who share our commitment to stronger families and equitable communities to join us in this next chapter. There is tremendous opportunity ahead, and we believe the greatest impact will come from working together.

On behalf of the Board of Directors, I extend my sincere gratitude to our staff, volunteers, leadership team, funders, partners and community supporters for your continued commitment to Family Services of Peel.

Together, we are not simply responding to the needs of our community—we are helping shape a stronger, more connected and equitable Peel.

LEADERSHIP MESSAGE

Finding Our Way Forward Together.

> In the middle of the journey of our life, I found myself in a dark wood, for the straight way was lost."
> — Dante Alighieri

The poet Dante Alighieri opens Inferno with an image of a traveller who has lost the familiar path. As Mark Camilleri reflects, the dark wood is not only a place of uncertainty, but also a place of transition — where a new way forward begins.

Family Services of Peel stands at such a junction.

Across Canada, families are navigating uncertainty, financial pressure, social isolation and rapid change. The needs people bring to our doors are rarely confined to one part of their lives. Someone seeking counselling may also need help finding work. A senior experiencing isolation may need connection and practical support. A family under strain may need timely care before a crisis deepens.

At FSP, we have also faced a period of change.

Recent shifts across departments have prompted us to look closely at how we work. We are implementing Sage Intacct to strengthen our financial systems. We are investing in polyvagal-informed learning to deepen our understanding of stress, safety and connection. And we are asking whether our current structures make it as easy as possible for staff to work together — and for clients to receive the help they need.

These are reasons for a new start.

But a new start does not mean forgetting what brought us here. It means being honest about what this moment asks of us, and courageous enough to respond.

For FSP, the path forward can be understood in three ways.

First, we deepen our roots. Our roots are our purpose, our relationships and the trust placed in us. They are found in the skill and compassion of our staff, in the wisdom of people with lived experience, and in our commitment to helping individuals and families build stronger, healthier lives.

Second, we strengthen the structure that supports us. Sage is more than a new finance system; its value will be measured in clearer processes, reliable information and better decisions. Reviewing how departments work together is equally important, so that service needs, staff insight and evidence guide any changes we make.

Third, we widen our canopy. We cannot address the challenges facing Peel from within separate programs or organizational walls. Our strategic plan calls us to respond to community need, collaborate, remain accountable, support organizational health and use research to improve practice. Through our partners, our programs and the Peel Institute of Research and Training, we can connect knowledge to action and make support easier to reach.

This is where the national and the local meet.

Renewal is experienced in communities — when a young person can find counselling without telling their story again and again, when a parent finds support before stress becomes crisis, when an older adult finds belonging, and when a staff member has the tools, clarity and care needed to serve well.

We do not have every answer today.

But we do know the direction. We will rebuild trust where it is needed. We will strengthen our systems and our teams. We will bring compassion and accountability together. And we will keep the people of Peel at the centre of every decision.

Dante's traveller could not continue along the path he had expected.

He still found a way forward.

So can we.

Let this be the next chapter of Family Services of Peel: rooted in purpose, strengthened by change, and reaching further together — so that more individuals and families can build stronger, healthier lives.

Leadership & Innovation: Polyvagal Theory

Advancing trauma-informed care through neuroscience, therapeutic listening and measurable outcomes

> What if, before asking someone to talk, reflect, problem-solve or change, we first asked: is their nervous system ready?

A New Way of Understanding Care

Across her career, Sera has worked alongside people navigating complex circumstances — from challenges with safety and identity, to experiences of family and sexual violence, to survivors of human trafficking and those displaced by war. The geography and the stories changed, but one thing remained consistent: trauma often enters the room before language does.

Sera saw it in the person who could not stop talking, the person who could barely speak, the body that could not settle and the mind moving too quickly to know where to begin. Long before she encountered Polyvagal Theory, she witnessed nervous systems doing exactly what they had learned to do — protect.

Polyvagal Theory, at its simplest, reminds us that our nervous systems are continually looking for cues of safety and threat, often before our conscious minds catch up. We see this pattern every day at FSP — in our staff, clients and communities — and it helps explain why so many of us know what it feels like to be activated, overwhelmed or unable to switch off.

Why This Matters at FSP

FSP's work with the Safe and Sound Protocol (SSP) is helping evolve what trauma-informed community mental health care can look like in Ontario. In two years, 40 clients participated in 173 sessions and more than 28 hours of therapeutic listening, supported by 38 measurement-based outcome assessments and follow-up status checks.

By going beyond understanding trauma intellectually to responding to how it lives in the nervous system — and beyond offering interventions to continuously measuring whether they are making a difference — we are building a model of care that is responsive, measurable and deeply human.
